One is week- expressed by Mr Ray Wyre, a end imprisonment from Satur- probation officer working in day morning to Sunday night, perhaps with offenders being taken by coach to converted camps or other accommmodation. The appeal of weekend imprisonment is that it would enable offenders to stay in their jobs and keep their failies

Disused schools and hospitals are among accom-modation considered for parttime imprisonment during the week. Speakers at the annual conference of the National Association of Probation Officers in Southport at the weekend made clear that much distaste remains for tasks which smack of punitive control. The prison service is also overstretched and hard pressed to keep jails running. To man part-time prisons the Home Office is considering the recruitment of special staff, such as retired police officers or school teachers, Police officers have shown themselves adept at running Saturday attendance centres.

The inability of the prison service to take on the running of part-time jails is strengthening an argument for local management. Carstend to move rather quickly.

So when they decided to build brand new offices, they also decided they'd need to move in as soon as possible.

Because of Mazda's business pressures, the first shovelful of dirt to the last brick had to be achieved in just 15months.

Finding a builder who could meet this deadline without cutting corners was of primary importance.

We're proud to say we left all our competitors standing and won the contract.

Performance figures of 0-completion in 15 months may not rate too highly in the car industry, but in the construction industry it's very impressive indeed.

Like other clients such as National Westminster Bank, Sainsburys, and the Dept. of the Environment, Mazda found that Wallis could meet their demands and complete the job both on time and within budget.

And Mazda's architects, Hubbard Ford Partnership, also demanded that the quality of the interior finish and craftsmanship should be second to none.

At Wallis, we employ only the best. The sort of craftsman that can tackle jobs like the refurbishment of parts of the Old Bailey and the restoration of the ceiling to the House of Lords.

To a large extent, it's this range of operations that not only helps us reduce our overall costs to our clients

s one of the country's leading car importers, Mazda but also helps us to complete all our jobs as quickly and efficiently as possible.

> Within the Wallis Group, we have main construction divisions but more even significantly our own "in-house" Service Divisions for manufactured joinery, electrical installations, decorating, and special works as well as pre-cast concrete and reconstructed stone products.

> So while other builders look to expensive (and not always reliable) sub-contractors for specialist jobs like Mazda Cars' Tunbridge Wells offices, we tend to look to ourown.

> It's buildings buildings so efficiently that has built our business up to where it is today. A highly successful company that has been building since 1860, in spite of the ups and downs of the rest of the construction industry in Britain.

> After all, how can we hope to meet your targets if we can't even meet our own?

Banker died fearing frame-up by KGB From Our Own Correspondent

Moscaw

The British banker who died in a mysterious fall in Moscow last June told the British Embassy just before his death-that he feared being blackmailed for pornography and illegal currency dealings.

Dennis Skinner, 2ged 54, who was the Midland Bank representative in Moscow, was found dead below his twelfth floor flat on the morning of Friday, June 17. Two days earlier he handed a note to a British husiness colleague in the same block of flats, in which he claimed that he knew of a Soviet spy in the British Embassy and that he might be arrested before he could attend an embassy reception that evening.

In the event Mr Skinner, who was in a distraught state, entered the embassy without hindrance and talked to Mr David Ratford, the British minister, and the head of embassy security. The banker spent the night of June 15 at the flat of another British diplomat and had a further interview with Mr Ratford the following day, Thursday,

That evening he returned alone to his own flat on Leninsky Prospekt, and was found at 8.30 on the Friday morning on the pavement outside. His pullover covered his eyes and his trouser leg was [Judgment delivered October 14] Well established sentencing pol-icy was that a long period of driving in many cases certainly would, disqualification might be contrary to public interest in being countermotoring offences from n young motoring vehicles alone, vehicles.

Regina v Thomas (Kevin) and Mr Justice French

Consequently the sentencing policy could amount to grounds for mitigating the normal consequences of a conviction for motoring offences and enabled the court to impose disqualification for less than 1982). the statutory minimum of two years under section 19(4) of the Transport Act 1981. The Lord Chief Justice so stated

The Lord Chilef Justice so stated when giving the court's reserved judgment allowing an appeal by Kevin Thomas, aged 25, against disqualification of two years imposed at Grimsby Crown Court (Judge Geoffirey Jones) on pleas of guilty to two offences of driving while disqualified. He was sen-tenced also to six months' imprison-ment which he had served. On ment which he had served. On appeal the period of disqualification was reduced to one year. By section 19(4) the minimum period was six mooths, or one or two years, depending on previous

In re West Anstey Common Before Mr Justice Whitford [Judgment delivered October 12]

His Lordship dismissed with costs an appeal by Mr H. M. J. Harrison against the decision of Mr L. J. Morris Smith, a Commons Commissioner in relation to West Anstey Common, Devon, dated January 20, 1982. The appeal to the Chancery Division was based on the contention that the commissioner crited in law in not inquiring into the validity of the whole of the registered unit, in the land section, when 2 part only of the registration had been referred to him. The numerous respondents were persons who had claimed rights of common over the register unit. Mr Vivian Chapman for the appellant; Miss Sheila Cameron, QC or the respondents. MR JUSTICE WHITFORD said

MR JUSTICE WHITFORD said thet on January 29, 1982, Mr Morris Smith gave a decision concerning West Anstey Common (including Anstey Rhiney Moor, Guphill Common, Anstey Moory Common, Woodland Common and part of Twitchen Common) all in north Devon, which had been registered as common land to the register maintained by Devon County Council, as unit No CL 143. Edward Michael Harrison had been registered as owner of part of coward michael Harrison had been registered as owner of part of the land (being roughly Anstey Rhiney Moor and Guphill Com-mon) and Ernest John Nicholls and George Elston Nicholls had been registered as owners of Woodland Common

The appellant, Hugh Michae James Harrison, who had inherited his father's interests at about the time when various claims and objections were being registered pursuant to the Commous Registration Act 1965, oow appealed by way of case stated under section 18 of the Act, on the ground that the commissioner's decision was erropeous in point of law.

There were n number of entries in the rights section of the register.

The only objection as to the land section, objection 529, had been made by Messrs E. J. and G. E. Nicholis, on the ground Woodland Common was and always had been private property over which there had never been any rights of common. In his decision the Commissioner said that objection 529 related only to part of the register unit in the that there was no need to consider the evidence since ultimately the the the rights section) was not present or represented and in the absence of evidence to establish ber right the commissioner thought that he must regard the objection as successful, registered to the land section.

That brought his Lordship to the principal point in Mr Chapman's case that the commissioner was bound, once objection 529 had been taken, to inquire into the validity not only of the objection io so far as it related to Woodland Common, but as to the validity of the whole registration, although no other bjections had been taken as to any other part of the land.

It was strange that no objections had been taken, by the appellant or his father, 10 years ago when one might have thought they would be taken, that Anstey Rhiney Moor and Guphill Common ought not to have been admitted to registration.

It was said that it might seem hard so far as other parties were concerned that no objections having been taken theo there should now be a re-hearing io which objections which ought to have been taken, could have been taken and were not taken then would be argued.

It was also said that quite plainly the scheme of the Act and the regulations made thereunder was based oo a very tight time table and that oo provision was made for any discretion in favour of anyone who had failed to object after the expiry of the relevant period for making objections.

But, as Mr Chapman rightly said, the court should not consider how hard it might be on others if in fact there had been an error of law and the matter would have to go Chapman relied upoo In re Sutton Common, Wimborne, ([1982] 1 Common. WLR 647). back in that event whatever the cost

But In re Sutton Common had to be considered in relation to its own special facts. There a small part of in time and money might be to everybody concerned. There were a cumber of entries io

the rights section affecting the "Harrison" land, but no objections had been made against those claims. The question for his Lordship was whether the commissioner was hound to inquire into the whole registration, as Mr Chapman coolended, or whether his duty was darajah rather more limited, as Miss Cameron contended, to give a decision as to the ioclusioo of appeal tribunal, hearing an appeal against directions for removal from Woodland Commoo in the registhe United Kingdom on the grouod

Mr Chapman contended that the Act plainly provided that where that the appellant should be removed to another country under objections were made to entries in the land section they could only be section [7(1) of the Immigration Act 1971, did oot have jurisdictioo to made in respect of the eotry as a whole, because there was oo express consider whether the directions fo removal should be implemented at all and could only consider whether power in the Act for an objection to be made in respect of a part only of the appellant should be removed to a different country. Mr Justice Woolf so held to the Queen's Bench the land registration,

A casual observer might consider that to be a rather extraordinary provision in an Act iotended to provide for the making of claims, the entry of objections and the disposal thereof within as short a Corporation of India time as might be possible without incurring mnecessary expense. Section 5 was coocerned to ensure that proper publicity was given to registrations and objections thereto. Nothing to the language of that section second to exclude the

The camp on the River Kwai

The clandestine diary of Dr Robert Hardie was compiled in various Japanese prison camps between 1942 and 1945. Written on stolen scraps of paper, hid-den inside a hospital vacuum flask, it was inuried in a box in the cemetery at Chungkai camp .: A few weeks after the war ended, Dr Hardie recovered the papers and transcribed into a notebook 1:15 75.000-word account of life as a medical officer among the prisoners of ar building the infamous Burma-Siam railway alongside the River Kwai. Of the 61,000 Allied prisoners who worked on the railway, 15,000 died. Yet tesides the descriptions of neglect, maltreatment, sickness and death, the charies contain passages describing in actail the abudant natural life of the region - an interest also reflected in the pencil sketches and watercolours included in the edition of the dlary published this week. Born in 1904, Dr Hardie was cducated at Fettes College, Edinburgh, and at Trinty College, Oxford, before catering the administrative grade of the Nome Civil Service. He resigned 'in 1930 to read medicine at Edinburgh University, qualifying as a doctor five years later, and 1937 joined a medical practice in Kuala Lumpur. In 1939 he was commissioned as a medical officer in the 3rd Malayan Volunteer Field imbulance: in February 1942, when Singapore fell, he was taken prisoner.

After the war he remained in Malaya until 1951, when he returned to Scotland. Between 1952 and 1967 he was successively Assistant Medical Officer of Health, Argyll; Medical Officer of Health, Berwickshire; and Medical Officer of Health under the Ministry of Overseas Development in Trelawny, Jamalca. He died in Edin-burgh in 1973.

His diary was not published during his lifetime because, according to his widow, Mrs Elspeth Hardie, the more sensational books on the subject made him feel that he would be cashing in. Its publication this week marks the fortieth anniversary of the completion of the Burma-Siam line.

This first of three extracts begins when Dr Hardie had been a prisoner for more than a year; disease and death were already common place. After a five-week march up-river through difficult terrain, he and fellow captives arrived at the village of Takanun. A few kilometres further up the Kwai the hospital company was given a few tents with the indication that here it would set its treatment camp.

We have now been in this Takanun camp for 10 days. Already here on our arrival was 16th Battalion, living under water carrying and cooking, and as often as not refusing to allow us a single man or spade for the needs of camp sanitation. The shortage of latrines is appalling and the condition of the camp and surroundings conse-quently frightful. The Nips keep demanding more men for the railway and launch into furious tirades against us because there are so many sick.

So we live, lying at night on the bare ground or on a hastily constructed frame of flattened bamboo, with no lights, our food little beyond rice and this utterly unappetizing, and probably dietetically useless, dried "seaweed". Trying to attend to numerous sick with only a few tents, and those leaky, to accomodate them in, and having in addition extra desperately ill men dumped on us from outside, brought in on Nip orders as if there were a hospital here. One is reminded of the face-saving assurance of the Japanese in Singapore when sending unfit men up to Thailand - that there was a first-class fully equipped hospital" at Ban Pong, which turned out to be no more than squalid huts knee-deep in mud and flood-water and sewage.

Some thin starveling cattle have vening within 36 hours of the onset of serious symptoms. The Japanese are plus malaria cases. The new cholera much alarmed by this development. Their first step was to have a bamboo pitched: they are in fact already fence built between their part of the occupied. The river is rising. fence built between their part of the camp and ours. At the gate is a box, with a folded-up sack, soaked in disinfectant, lying in it. Anyone passing into the Japanese area must wipe his feet on this mat. He must also wash his hands in a bowl of disinfectant alongside.

A site on a rough slope outside the hospital area, and separated from it by small ravine, has been designated by Colonel Yanagida and Nobusawa as the place where three tents, which they will give us to accommodate cholera cases, will be pitched. They have already given us one extra tent for suspects. If a man in the main camp gets cholera, the other occupants of his tent are quarantined - they don't go out to work, are confined to a small area but are available for jobs about the camp. By this means we have got men to dig some new latrines. But it needed a cholera epidemic to do it. Bathing in the river has been stopped. All purchases from Siamese boats and barges, even of eggs for

JUNE 1, 1943

The total of cholera cases is now over 80, with 35 deaths. Rain is falling almost continuously and it is not possible to do anything without getting soaked. The tents leak abominably and there are quite a number of men who have not even tents to cover them. We are told that more tents are coming; meanwhile all we have had is a pep talk by the Jap colonel, to the effect that although the country is beautiful, it is unhealthy and we must look after our health.

The rain goes on .- the monsoon in full hlast. In the mornings, mist wreathes and smokes along the hillside above us, green with its feathery bamboos and tall trees. In the soaked stillness of the air, out of the wet woods, come occasional plangent and fluty bird notes. It is wet, wet, but rather not finish till 9pm. A Japanese colonel is said to have expressed the view that not much more work could be got out of the troops u here. They are certainly going down in large numbers with various forms of discase; so the Jap engineers, who do not regard ill-health as a reason for not working (at least among the slaves), are working the remainder harder and harder as time gets shorter and they feel less certain of getting their railway finished by the date aimed at.

New Orleans When I first fell in love with jazz in the mid 1950s I knew that New Orleans was the place to go to. I also knew that I had left it far too late if jazz history was to be believed, which is sometimes is. Most of the best musicians had left the Crescent City by about 1920 to go on and make their names in Chicago. New York and the world. All that was left in New Orleans was a few old men barely keeping the tradition

And now quite unexpectedly I have got to New Orleans at last, only to find that there is a great deal of jazz here, probably much more than there was in the 1950s. It much more than there was in the 1950s. It isn't so much that it bas revived here as that it has been brought back, mostly by young white players from America, Britain and Scandinavia, players who have so fallen in love with the music that they are prepared to lug their trumpets and clarinets half way across the world to set up home here. Eveo in the traditional marching bands you will spot eager young white faces among the older black ones. This is about as extraordinary a thing as it would be if London were rediscovered as the bome of music hall, with pilgrims coming to London to search out the old singers and comedians, or if young Americans flocked to London to sing traditional music hall songs in East End pubs. What makes it odder still is that jazz is not central to the lives of most people in much more than there was in the 1950s. It is not central to the lives of most people in New Orleans.

. It certainly doeso'l play a central part in the life of the black community, from whence it came all those years ago. I had hunch yesterday at Buster Homes, a small eating house oo the edge of the French quarter which features red beans and rice, the dish beloved of Louis Armstrong. There were one or two jazz relics on the walls along with boxing posters and pictures of black celebrities but among the bundreds of records in the juke box there was only one by a jazz artist, Louis himself. All the rest were a rhythm 'n' blues, soul, modern rock, and even a few singles by British groups.

If you wander at night down Bourbon Street, the toorist strip of the Freoch Quarter, yoo will hear - just as the guide book says - music coming out of almost every doorway. A lot of it is young while jazz, but a lot of it is other stuff - country music, rock 'n' roll, strip club backing tracks and, at the 500 Club, some very good all-black rhythm 'n' blues bands. On the corner of St Peter's Street you come at last to a really classy black jazz artist, trumpeter Wallace Davenport. But ironically be isn't elderly and traditional enough to get a good crowd; the speciators are all round the corner at Preservation Hall. This stark room, looking rather like a National Trust property before renovatioo has started, has been devoted for the last 20 years to giving the old guys a place to play. Impossible to tell how old some of them are, hot over 70 and 80 is not uncommon. Yon pay a dollar to get in and you may oot smoke, drink, cat or even sit - only listen in reverence to the survivors doing their thing, and doing it rather well, especially in the case of clarinetist Willie Humphrey. After 40 minutes we give them a staod ovation, no other kind of ovatioo being possible, and are ushered out in time for the next shift. Authenticity is not just a key word, it is now a gimmick. It suddenly occurred to me, as I stood wedged between German students and a group from Wisconsin, that by dispensing with all tourist gimmicks these old guys had packed in more visitors than any of the clip joints on Bourbon Street. Two bundred of us at a dollar a head, a fresh bouse every 60 minutes. That is a lot of money. I certainly hope that most of it is going to the boys io the band. After a lifetime of being left behind by jazz history they descrve it. With the arrival of our parties, things are a trifle better. We know rather better than these new arrivals from Singapore how to make the hest of bad conditions.

The accommodation for the men in this camp is hopelessly inadequate: the ents are crammed, but still men have to sleep in the open (some prefer to) or inder such primitive shelters as they and a little attao and perhaps a groundsheet. They are being hard worked, too. They parade after a hasty breakfast about three-quarters of an hour after dawn, and go on to 6 or 7 Tokyo time (to within an hour or two of sunset) tamboo cutting, tree felling, bridge building, embankment huilding and making cuttings, pile driving and so an, all io blazing sun under constant ressure backed up hy violence. These men have been kept without citeration for so long that when they get here there is nothing to be done except see them die - they are so far gone that there is nothing for us to work on in attempting to save them.

The country is picturesque: we are closely surrounded by bamboo and big-tree jungle on steep slopes. Across the river, which runs brokenly in a rocky bed with deep pools, rise fine irregular limestone hills. There are rumours of cholera up the river, and bathing (and fishing) are restricted.

The conditions in the hospital are really terrible. The few tents are crowded, six or seven people on each side lying on roughly flattened bamboo slats. Most of them are severe dysenteries; they are helpless. There is a lot of rain now, and the tents leak. There is only one bedpan in the whole hospital, and three enamelled pots. The weather is too wet to get the patients outside every day - even if there were stretchers to carry them on - and even if they could be got out we have no soap and cloths to clean the tents up. The stench and squalor of these tents is shocking; what is surprising is how the orderlies manage to keep them from becoming worse.

Nursing in any ordinary sense of the word is practically impossible. It is no wonder that some of these men despair: last night one of them tried to saw through the arteries of his wrists against a sharp edge of cut bamboo. It's away with themselves. But they need

Still raining. There are some cases in the hospital which seem very like cholera - vomiting, watery diarrhoea, cramps, intense prostration and dehydration. With the numberless flies and the continued rain, which effectually prevents airing and cleaning the tents, the hospital is truly a sinister and depressing place. It looks as though we are in for a disastrous epidemic.

cooking, have been prohibited. The whole camp is to be inoculated with cholera vaccine. A Japanese pathologist from the laboratory a few kilometres down-river was here a couple of days ago. He said he had identified the vibrio in specimens. He seemed to know something of his subject,

The Nips, it will be seen, are doing everything to prevent the spread of the cholera. They have done nothing at all for the men who get it. De Wardener is trying to organize a supply of saline for intravenous administration, but there are great difficulties.

Cooking, which had become a little more varied before the cholera broke out - local purchase of sugar, soya bean and some frying oil (pork fat) has been restricted again to rice and stew, to give as little chance as possible to flies to spread infection by contaminating incompletely covered food. The river has risen a good deal.

impressive and beautiful.

JUNE 7, 1943

A lot of rain still. The river has risen over 10 feet in its wide bed and is swirling down in a steady yellow rush, submerging the willow-like bushes along the banks and carrying down on its surface great matted tangles of trees and bamboos. The cholera epidemic is now tending to abate. Let's hope the anti-cholera measures will also reduce dysentery.

JUNE 13, 1943

I have been having malaria. This is my fifth day of quinine. I never had the typical ague or shiver. The first night curious cold crawling chills played up and down my spine. The headache and bone ache were severe - and, of course, a bamboo bed is not very comfortable even if one is well. Sweating so much,

JUNE 27, 1943

Our food is now improved - a fair amount of vegetable, as well as a better allowance of meat. The Japs have given us a little diesel oil for anti-fly measures and anti-malaria work. We have found some breeding places not far from the camp and treat them at frequent intervals.

I have been sleeping badly and dreaming a lot. It is rather depressing lying awake at night on a rough bamboo bed a few inches off the damp soil, which teems with ants, listening to the patter of rain on the leaky tent roof and the whisper and creak of the bamboo just outside. There is a constant background of sound, too, which one becomes aware of at such times - the shrilling of cicadas, the croaking chorus of frogs, the surge of the river rapids below, the wind in the leaves.

For leagues around us lie the wet rocky hills with their dense bamboo thickets and their great forest trees, their cliffs and deep foliage-choked ravines, the sinister and melancholy walls of our prison. Nearer at hand, one thinks of the cholera, dysentry and malaria tents with their helpless emaciated occupants lying in squalor, many of them inevitably and despairingly sinking towards death. Sometimes they cry out meaninglessly in their restless discomfort during these long nights; sometimes you hear a weak voice calling for an orderly to attend him, and the short exchange of speech. Then silence again.

sideways look at he British way of life

FAST FOOD by Robin Young

There is nothing essentially wrong with food being fast. Edouard de Pomiane realistically subtitled his collection of 300 recipes for Cooking in Ten Minules "The Adaptation to the Rhythm of our Time". His book, he explained, was for anyone – student, artist, man of action or dreamer - who had only an hour for lunch or dinner yet still wanted half an hour of peace or spare time. Fast food restaurants spread their urban picnic today, seeking to serve no less catholic a clientele.

McDonald's are on King William Street to offer breakfast to City workers streaming from London Bridge. Burger King's branch in Coventry Street pipes elassical music at lunchtime. At the Wimpy, Piccadilly Circus, three of my neighbouring luochers were reading The Times.

Of course our popular national dish is fast food - fish and chips. Though usually cast in only a supporting role in fast food chains, we still bolt £220 million worth a year. And what Lord million worth a year. And what Lord Sandwich started by ordering some meat between slices of bread so his card game should not be interrupted has become a way of life for half the population.

Do not blame the Americans. Plato identified the stomach as seat of the soul, but no doubt the ancient Greeks had fast food vendors at the first Olympic Games. The hamburger came from Europe. It has its place in *Larousse Gastronomi-*que. When the Americans started banging it into buns at World Fairs, they were following both Lord Sandwich's aristocratic precedent and the Lord Sandwich's aristocratic precedent and the example of Alexis Soyer, the French genius who set ot to provide meals all could afford at the Great Exhibition of 1851. Soyer's army field stove was a model piece of industrial catering equipment, and his soup kitchens for the poor were a pioneering fast food chain. Yet, like McDonald's in the suburbs today. he outraged the bourgeoisie. The difference is that when refused a licence Soyer, through amour propre, closed down immediately. Refused planning permission today, McDooald's are likely to get up a petitioo and win.

Soyer's abortive scheme in 1851 was called "The Gastronomic Symposium of All Nations". It described), yet a "jumbo burger" could be only failed then, but flourishes on British streets today. Fast foods ready at hand include spring rolls from China, samosas from India, kebabs of the Near East, Merican tacos and Italian pizzas, as well as British breakfasts and good old baked potatoes. A recent addition is the French croissant, overburdened with fillings at glitzy palaces such as Croissant Show opposite Charing Cross. A disgruntled customer remarks: "They will be stuffing disposable nappies next". Not necessarily - it could be Egyptian fallofal, Japanese giosa, Afghan kurma, or English muffins, all of which get stuffed in New York. The nublic muddle fast food with innk food

The public muddle fast food with junk food. That is partly because both are sold through the same outings. Strictly junk food is that which is nutritionally valueless. Fast food does not have to be.

e. Cola is junk. Milk shake is not. Napoleon was not the first to insist that stomachs are what armies march on. In Britain today there is a queasiness about the things we eat and what they might be doing to the national fibre. Yet even health foods can be fast, though you might not guess it from the queues at Cranks.

Our appetites are dulled by the uncomfortable knowledge that as technology advances, food definitions become looser. Hamburgers must be at least four-fifths meat (and 100 per cent, if so one tenth meat. And meat itself can include the feet, intestines, lungs, oesophagus, rectum, spinal cord, spleen, stomach, testicles and udders of the animal, without unseemly mention of the fact. It is technologically possible to make protein from any source taste of anything from beef to smoked salmon. Jack Tolley, Liverpool chemist, is famous in the food technology trade for his achievement in converting his own excreta into rich, palatable pudding.

The fast food chains apply rigorous quality control (up to three days' laboratory tests on each batch of meat), yet are themselves not innocent of the legalized debasement of food terminology. Remember that calling an egg "farm fresh" or cheese "cheddar" tells you nothing. But then the pit-stop caterers operate in a highly competitive world and it remains true, if sad, that the convenience foods they peddle enable many to have better tucker than they could, or would, prepare for themselves.

I am a founder-member of the British Academy of Gastronomes. Doo't laugh. Temporarily, volunteered to become our man in the fast food restaurants. On your behalf I went to the urban picnie, armed with notebook and stopwatch, to evaluate the chains on three counts - value for money, efficiency, and standard of food.

The minute stakes

The NHS must unite and fight

The manpower cuts at the NHS have created a new situation. The British Medical Association at one end of the spectrum and the National Union of Public Employees at the other are agreeing with each other, and many Conservative doctors and members of health authorities are openly objecting to government policy.

The new factor is not that the NHS is being destroyed - damage is not destruction - but that doctors, nurses and administrators, the middle managers who until now have made the best of a bad job, are criticizing the Department of Health and Social Services. People who previously felt they were taking unpopular hut necessary decisions to speed a rather savage rationalization of services now feel that they are being treated as puppets in an unsavoury pantomime.

There is no mandate for the manpower cuts and they are manifestly doctrinaire and damaging to clinical care. For example, many authorities are being instructed to dismiss regular nursing staff but they are allowed to take on the same number of agency nurses the next day. Similarly, even where authorities have shown that they can make savings of up to half a million pounds a year by taking on extra staff to cut overtime, they are not allowed to do so. The manager's freedom to make consistent decisions has been abolished.

Government Newspeak for the NHS, such as "efficiency savings", "revised cash limits" or "revised manpower targets" has bred cynicism over and above the direct and disruptive effects of cuts. Pay increases well different political ball game, what will be the outcome? There are three main possibilities.

Second, there could be strikes and in-fighting in the profession, which could then slowly fizzle out. The third and most likely possibility is that the NHS will realize its power and its value and increasingly dissociate itself from the DHSS and its ministers. In contrast to the myths and party propaganda, many health service staff and managers are nowadays aware that for all its faults, the record of the NHS, compared with health systems in other countries, is of the gnp that is about half as big again as ours. Similarly, the 21 per cent administrative overheads in the US, are no less than four times the percentage of ours.

US, West Germany and Sweden need a slice

It is an open secret that the many difficulties the health service is experiencing are not intrinsic to the NHS. The underlying problems are the British economy and current economic policy. It seems inevitable that organizations such as the BMA, the Royal College of Nursing and the National Association of Health Authorities will start to make themselves heard in public debates about economic policy.

What a former editor of The Lancet called the "greater medical profession" - the essential supporting staff as well as the more visible (and better rewarded) front-liners, particularly the doctors - has yet to recognize its strength. The even bigger health community, which includes the thousands of members of health authorities and community health councils, hospital friends and so on, is not yet a coalition but is rapidly being encouraged to realize that it could be.

A key issue seems to be whether the greater medical profession will listen to those who tell it that its only option is to strike, or to those who advise it to use its brains and other resources to create new forms of effective representation and citizenship - and meanwhile to take pride in running the NHS better than ever, despite the sabotage.

Bernard Levin: The way we live now

Why disasters may not lose elections At a low point during the lifetime of candidate this time a poor third, a At a low point carring the metane of one of the postwar Conservative governments, the following conver-sation took place between Harold Wilson, Labour MP for Huyton, and politics.

general election now." All governments go through bad patches. Few governments, provided they can rely on a stable parliamentary majority, choose to call a general election while in the middle of a bad patch. Quite apart from the abrupt departure of Mr Cecil. Parkinson, covered in gore, this government at present certainly has its specifically political troubles. Open any newspaper and you will find these difficulties listed in: daunting array: trouble, in the economy; cuts in the health service; humiliating miscalculation of the Commons' vote on capital punishment; the near loss of safe Penrith in a recent by-election; the Tory lead in the latest Harris opinion poll cut to only 3 per cent. "What! Will the line stretch out to the crack of doom?" we can almost here Mrs Thatcher declaiming with Macbeth. The problem for the Opposition is that this parliament is not in its fifth year but in its fifth month, and that meanwhile the Prime Minister is borne up by a Commons majority of 143 over all othe parties.

"Ah," we are told, "but the electorate has a long memory." We are admonished that, in the words of another. Shakespeare play, Twelfth Night, the whitliging of time brings in. his revenges. Does he? Always? Five months into the last parliament there was trouble in the economy with value added tax increased from 8 to 15 per cent, minimum lending, rate np to 14 per cent and inflation. up by more than 6 per cent. There was a row of health service cuts, with prescription charges almost doubled. A Tory House of Com-mons had kicked its pro-hanging . Prime Minister in the teeth, rejecting capital punishment by a majority of 199. The first by election of the mariament had shown an of the parliament had shown an anti-Government swing of 5 per. cent. Opinion poll ratings gave Labour a lead of 6.3 per cent. Within a further six months

Labour, favoured by a swing of 12.9 per cent, was to fail by only 430 votes to gain the safe Conservative seat of Southend, East. Yet when the general election eventually came, at a time chosen by the Prime Minister to suit herself, the Conservatives, despite their many tribulations swept back to power. In Southend, East their majority returned to its former level, with the Labour

victim of the new era of three-party

Three-party politics still continue to help Mrs Thatcher. Labour's encouraging showing in the latest opinion polls has not come about because of a net swing from the Conservatives. The Harris poll puts the Tory vote at the same level, 42 per cent, as in June's general election. What has happened is that the impetus of Neil Kinnock's election as party leader has won over substantial numbers of SDP/Liberal Alliance voters to support the Labour Party.

That development, as far as it goes, is certainly encouraging to Labour. However, Mrs Thatcher won her huge parliamentary majority last June, despite Labour and Alliance voters combined outnumbering Tory voters by three million. It does not matter to the Prime Minister if she continues to be supported by only a minority of the electorate, provided that her minority remains larger than either of the two minorides: In the October 1979 opinion poli Labour achieved a 6.3 per cent lead over the Tories' 40.9 per cent, because Liberal support stood at only 10 per cent. Today, Labour is 3 per cent behind the Tories' 42 per per cent behind the Tories' 42 per cent, because the Alliance has maintained a rating of 18 per cent. In three-party politics it is no longer enough for the government to be unpopular. That government, though outnumbered by opposition voters, goes on winning-elections unless the principal opposition party either positively wins support from either positively wins support from the government's voters, or massi-vely erodes the support of the second opposition party, or, best of all, does both. Mr Kinnock's leadership has begun propitiously by clearly estab-lishing Labour as the principal opposition party. He and Roy Hattersley are regaining votes for Labour because they have been able. with the assistance of their confer ence, to show the electorate the acceptable face of socialism. If over the coming months they can consolidate that achievement, there is a serious prospect that Alliance supporters, anxious to defeat the Tories, will in ever-increasing numbers come over to Mr Kinnock as the man who can get rid of Mrs Thatcher.

In that case, he can confidently look forward to becoming Prime Minister at the end of this parliament. Otherwise, pavements littered with banana skins will not prevent the Tories from profiting from the split anti-Conservative majority and winning again.

the Thatchers' Blackpool suite he didn't announce that he was going to elope with the Prime Minister.

Finally, there is the Bishop of Bath and Wells. I must say firmly that I am sick and tired of clergymen meddling in matters which are none of their concern; an English Bishop's dutics, in the field of public comment, are to denounce Nato, complain that the levels of Supplementary Benefit are too low and demand that there should be no cuts in NHS funding, not to go about prononncing on questions of morality, which are entirely outwith a rgyman's competence and should be left to newspaper columnists. As far as this newspaper columnist is concerned, no moral view of the rights and wrongs of the private relationship between Mr Parkinson and Miss Keays will be expressed. She has taken her revenge, and although it is my belief that vengeance is at once the most sterile and the most corrosive of all human pursuits, not even excluding war itself, she is not obliged to share my view, and in any case neither I nor anyone else other than the two neonle concerned can know enough of what happened between them to be able to pronounce with episcopal confidence where justice lies, or indeed what, in this context, it consists nf. But because Mr Parkinson is a politician and was a Cabinet minister, the affair inevitably takes on a different aspect, and a different kind of question can be asked: what what should be, the is, and relationship between a public man's public life and his private life? That question, hy one of those immutable laws of history that Sir Karl Popper so unwisely scorns, is asked every 10 years in this country. It was asked in 1963, the annus horribilis that began at Cliveden and ended with a new Prime Minister, in 1973, when the focus of attention was not a stately home but a house of ill-fame in the Maida Vale, and now once more; I wonder whose turn it will be in 1993? (It won't be Gummer, anyway, thank God.)

There is an unspoken premise (it is unspoken because if it were to be spoken it would at once collapse under the weight of its own absurdity) that politicians must be subject to more stringent rules of personal conduct than the rest of us because they are "looked up to" and must therefore "set an example". Countless millions of would-be sinners, it seems, are held in check by the thought that if the Minister of State at the Department of the Environment and Local Government would never make a pass at the au pair it would ill become lesser mortals to do so, and that if, on the other hand, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries should in the absence of his wife he found in

I must therefore make clear that I am not employing this useful device when I say that in all my life I have never met any persons, in any trade or profession, whether educated or uneducated, sophisticated or naive, rich or poor, old, young or middle-aged, who would sock objective standards of moral behaviour. not have to hold in view the hideous against which to measure their own. fate of the MP who in savagely from our political leaders, or who moral terms denounced the central would find otherwise than ridiculous or unintelligible the thought that they should.

Note that the public-morality nonsense applies only to politicians; captains of industry may swap wives vithout being obliged to leave office, and of actors it seems positively expected that they should. Of course, those who are ex officio charged with the care of souls, like bishops, or with literally laying down the law, like judges, must observe certain rules that do not apply to the rest of us, because something real and unportant would be damaged if too many of them fell too conspicuously from grace. But that is the price a man pays for wearing a full-bottomed wig or lawn sleeves: who started the rumour that politicians are in a similar position. and whoever he was, why didn't he notice that it isn't true?

The politicians are themselves very substantially to blame. The way so many of them - most, I think proposition's fallacy; the result can behave in the scramble to put those be seen in the outer darkness into two magic letters after their name which Mr Parkinson has now been has had the effect of elevating their cast. It was established in 1960 in true, if we selected our political response to the Notting Hill riots and over the years it has done a great deal of valuable work, representatives from some pool of special beings resembling Miss Beale and Miss Buss ("... are different establishing as well as the adventure from us"), for we must be able to see playground a community centre, a ourselves mirrored in our poli-ticians; as I have said more than youth club, a play group and facilities for the elderly. It operates once, in a democracy we are all in an area around the Golborne politicians, and the day we forget it Road which is, as it says itself and as will be a hlack day for us all. We do the world is pretty much aware, an area "of high social and economic deprivation with a number of large ethnic minority communities". Over the last two years the association has organized annual figure of the 1963 events, only to be revealed years later as a paid parliamentary hireling of Mr festivals for the community. This Poulson; it is not always true, after seems to have arisen as a natural all, that those who are most zealous in the reproof of vice are whited consequence of its other activities and has been organized, I have been sepulchres themselves. But we do told, with imagination and skill. The trouble started when the inevitable for our politicians to suffer from the same frailties as the organizers of the festival decided to apply to the GLC for a grant - as all rest of us, because they are the same voluntary associations do these people as the rest of us: the truth days. It already has a grant from its. about public men is that they are days, it aiready has a grant from its own borough, Kensington and Chelsea, but the trend of official advice now is strongly in favour of applying for multiple funding. But the second was firmly rooted in the what the point is, except to make us, the donors, feel that the load is being ancient hypocrisy: in the false and shared and that the seal of approval tainted assumption that a politician's loves or lusts are more has already been granted "Oh well, if the Arts Council is backing it, culpable than those of a butcher, a we may as well chip in ... They are not, but too many politicians have wanted the public to think too that is the way it is and the argument well of them, and too many newspapers have cashed in on the is beside the point of this particular story.)

Having failed to get a grant from the GLC the first year because it applied too late, the association came back, in good time, in 1983. Now 1983 is, of course, the GLC's "Peace Year", and a helpful officer in the GLC grants department suggested to the association that the grant might be more easily come by if the proposed festival contained the word "peace" in it. So, obediently, the association rechristened their festival the "1983 Golborne Children's Peace Festival" though from a description of what was laid on it does seem to have made much difference, children's festivals being fairly peaceable affairs (or at least one hopes so) in any case. In the event, the GLC community arts sub-committee turned it down for whatever reason: perhaps that particular budget was already overspent, or members knew of some other more deserving cases. So the "peace" gambit, alas, failed. And here disaster struck. As a

As a result, although the festival weat ahead and was hugely success-ful, it accumulated a deficit of £700. It reapplied to the GLC, which - in a most gentlemanly way and with allparty agreement on the nod -decided to make good the deficit. Let no organization suffer (we thought in silent embarrassment) from innocently bearing the stigma of the GLC's crazy ideas. So I am bappy to report that this particular enterprise is now out of the red."

But what are these poor voluntary groups to do in future? Is there any way in which the Notting Hill Adventure Playground Association could have labelled its festival so as to appeal to both political camps? Could it have dropped a bottle of Snow-pac on the word "peace" when submitting it to Kensington and Chelsea? Or hastily translated it to "Children's Pax Britannica Festival"? Created a logo suggestive of a V for victory one way up, and a CND sign the other. And next year it is going-to be worse. Nineteen eighty-four -whatever the significance of those numbers to the rest of us - is the GLC's "Anti-Racist Year". Now Tories don't go a hundle on "anti-racism", though they can be persuaded to support "racial harmony". But racial harmony is regarded as a cop-out by the hardline anti-racists, and I'm not sure what priority applications with that tag will attract. It is all very difficult. In the US in the 1970s a trade of "proposal writers" grew up and flourished. In an era of great federal hand-outs, groups actually hired public relations firms to submit their cases in language that would appeal to the handers-out. Now here is a joh for proposal writers of an ambidextrous ingenuity: writing applications for grant-aid that include all the necessary buzz-words to appeal to a Conservative borough a Labour GLC, a benign hut cautious Arts Council and assorted Christian charities all at the same time, and without offending any of them. I offer the idea - free to anyone who wants to organize a good Christmas competition.

PEACE WEEK

This is to be the week of the. Peace movements. They hope that their demonstrations will cause western governments to abandon, or at least postpone, the planned introduction of cruise and Pershing missiles to West Europe. If the demonstrations fail to achieve that, as fail they must, the protesters will then seek to picket the missile bases and make them inopera-tive. according to Mr E. P. Thompson, speaking on the radio yesterday.

It is because the realistic assumption must be that the demonstrations will fail to deflect the alliance from its de peace. That is the fallacy under-clared policy that divisions are neath much public opinion now emerging among the peace polling in west Europe. We groups. The logic of demon- tain it, which requires a discistrations points to violence if the pline and an application which spectacle of non-violent demonstration fails to change political strators. decisions. That logic springs not from a belief by the protesters that they can literally prevent the missiles' operation by force, but because it is violent demonstrations which attract most publicity and it is publicity that they are after. Only with some extra publicity for a cause that has not prevailed through argument can they undermine the will-power of politicians.

This week is thus all about will-power in the chancelleries of the West. That is clear enough from the tronbled state of West Germany. The Soviet Union manipulates West German publie opinion persistently, if not always successfully. Thus Mr Genscher has been closeted this weekend with Mr Gromyko at the eleventh hour, not to show any weakening in allied policy but to show his supporters that he is trying.

The peace movement in West Enrope is one sided in more ways than one. It calls for unilateral gestures by the West can obliterate civilization and while pretending that the same societies just as effectively.

pressure of public opinion is being exercised on Soviet leaders. All recent evidence from the real, as opposed to the phoney, peace campaigners in the Soviet system shows that they are desperately keen for the West to continue to negotiate from a position of strength which would be fatally undermined by unilateral gestures.

The movement is one-sided philosphically in its emphasis on peace as an abstraction withont any reference to, or recognition of, the role of defence in achieving a state of affairs which could be called would all say yes to peace; it is seems to be lost on demon-

The west European peace movements are inspired by a tangle of influences of which the imminence of cruise and Pershings is merely the latest and most convenient. They obviously question the logic and discipline of nuclear deterrents. It is a difficult enough concept for the military to absorb since it requires armaments to prevent war rather than fight war. After 38 years without European conflict it is not surprising that the younger generation stumbles on the paradox that in order not to use weapons one must have them. Moreover arguments about nuclear deterrents have an arcane quality which deprives them of meaning for people outside the expert circle. The result is a general tendency to assume an apocalyptic attitude to nuclear weapons alone, and to forget that non-nuclear war can be just as horrible to those who are in the thick of it, and that it strations this week.

. The other influence in the peace groups is anti-Americanism. Though not inspired by the Soviet Union it neatly coincides with the Soviet longterm objective to sever the North Atlantie connexion. There are other cultural tensions between the United States and West Europe but the defence relationship is potentially the most difficult since the very success of the American commitment to Europeans, and the security provided by the nuclear umbrella, has created an irresponsibility in West European society, which, though regrettable, is easy to understand. It is difficult to inculcate a sense of responsibility for one's own security

when it is clear that somebody else is actually exercising that responsibility

The European countries, and most of all West Germany, are expected to provide conventional defences which are incorrectly portrayed to be irrelevant in the light of nuclear weapons. Nowhere is this misunderstanding more unsettling than in West Germany where the political division between East and West, and the latent insecurity of German society create a crisis of identity. At times of tension or decision, this leads to the search for an outside scapegoat, conveniently represented by Uncle Sam.

The West German peaceniks would like to forget that twice in this, century American troops, have had to come to Europe to defend Western civilization, threatened by German instability. There are now 300,000 American troops stationed in Europe to contribute to stability. Yet they are told that they are a threat to peace when they acquire weapons with which; to defend themselves. The consequence for all Europe would be grave if public opinion within sthin Sir John suggests. the United States reads too much into the peace demon-

But the crucial point is that the Civil Service exists in a state of political subordination to ministers; it has no authority to be independently innovative; its job is not to determine policy but to support politicians in so doing.

Moreover, as a permanent career service it is bound to political neutrality, and in a sense this means having no partisan commitment to current policies. In other words, it can never really be what Sir John

Sir, After reading Michael Hamlyn's report of October 8 on Punjab one would get the impression that the very raison d'être of the political agitation in Punjab is the refusal of the central Government to accept the demands of the Akali Dal Party. This, of course, is not quite true.

To grasp what is going on in this most volatile and turbulent state of the Indian union one has to look at the very composition of the Akali Dal Party. It is a mixed bag of radical nationalists, outright chauvinists and religious freaks. The moderate wing, led by Sant Langowal, is always under heavy pressure from the extremist wing, led by Sant Bhindranwale, a semieducated, self-confessed fanatie whom the Indian press has quite rightly described as the Ayatollah Khomeini of Punjab.

Irish accents

From Dr.4. R. Rumble

Sir. It is a pity that your correspondent's report ("How to write letters with an Irish accent", October 8), concerning research into modern Irish handwriting, is marred hy the concoction of an anachronistic "example" of fifth century balfuncial script in the phrase, "were in use".

A writer (even an Irish one) of that date would not have included either the letter "w" or a dotted "i" in his repertoire of letter forms. This error would have been avoided if, in accord with the general theme of the report, the phrase "are used" had been chosen as the example.

Another factor, not mentioned in the report, which must be taken into account in studying influences on modern Irish handwriting is the widespread use of half-uncial/Irish majuscule script for official purposes in the Republic. This is used there for the Irish portion of bilingual street names, for railway station names, and on the currency. These features of everyday life are a constant reminder to all who see them of a long, praiseworthy, and peculiarly Irish scribal tradition. I sign myself as, yours faithfully, ALEXANDER R. RUMBLE, University of Manchester, Department of Palacography, The University, Oxford Road, Manchester, October 9.

He eventually made Soviet Union Mr Andropov has confined himself to trying to the fatal error of launching the Cultural Revolution, m the stamp out beaurocratic sloth and corruption. But in China the belief that the answer lay in remoulding the party in his own question is still taken very image. China was plunged into a decade of terror from which the Ever since the 1940s Chinese Communist Party emerged even Communist leaders have conmore privileged, corrupt and sidered how to prevent their self-serving than before.

This is the legacy that Mr Deng Xiaoping and his supporters have inherited. Since returning to power in the late 1970s. Mr Deng has set himself an almost impossible task. Abandoning the left-wing rhet-oric of the Cultural Revolution era, he has adopted a range of economic and political policies previously denounced as leftist. At the same time he has tried to inject the spirit of Yanan into the party, so as to restore the revolutionary ideals of his own youth.

These two policies have to a large extent been contradictory. By the time Mao died most party members had already grown cynical after years of political intrigue and repeated changes of party line. Mr Deng's wholesale reversal of previous policies has only made such cynicism worse. Few of the 40 million or more party members will approach this task with the elan and commitment by which Mr Deng sets so much store.

It may have been an awareness of this that finally made Mr Deng decide on yet another party purge. Certainly he held back for some time, reluctant to subject the country to another political scorching attacks on the party campaign after the turmoils of the Cultural Revolution. But late last year the party decided to go ahead with a rectification movement, and this decision was spelt out in detail by the central committee plenary session that met in Peking this week.

The aim of this purge will be to unite and invigorate the party. ridding it of leftist opponents of Mr Deng's political programme as well as people guilty of corruption and other "economic crimes". Much of the ground-work for the purge has already been laid. Within the top leadership in Peking, most if not all the leftists have already been driven from office. And the authorities recently launched a large-scale and brutal campaign throughout China aimed at cracking down on crime among the people at large.

Mr.Deng has however insisted that the purge will not degenerate into a witch hunt reminiscent of Cultural Revolution days. No doubt he genuinely wants to avoid a revival of terror as an instrument of policy. But he may also be giving ground to those whose own past record does not dispose them towards supporting an attack on leftism. The result is that the purge is likely to end up a rather tame affair. The party has already stressed that it will concentrate on education and the study of Mr Deng's "selected works" and that only "a small bandful" of party members will be expelled. Neither Mr Deng's works nor a handful of expelsions will restore the party's ideals and sense of purpose, or do much to improve its popular standing and reputation. But the Chinese are at least addressing a problem which other ruling communist parties have dismally failed to solve.

Some readers may not yet be familiar with a new, familiar with a new, rapidly proliferating art form that flourishes particularly at this time of year under the shelter of the Dance Umbrella. It consists, in its simplest form, of counting the number of words devoted io the papers to discussing different kinds of theatrical dancing, and using that information to develop elaborate theories how oppressed and neglected is the kind of dance that the author favours.

One factor neglected so far is that of public opinion, which over-whelmingly favours classical-ballet. For proof of that, one has only to note that Covent Garden seats many more people that the theatres where rival dance attractions appeared last "Sold Out" signs up for Manon on Saturday whereas the others, al-though well attended, could still have accommodated extra spec-tators." death scene, but David Wall plays the role so well that yon hardly notice. Returning to London last week, they had an extra member of the team, Kirstie Simson, who engages in various odd and not especially interesting activities with paper bags during the opening sequence, but later dances a long sequence with Hamilton in which contact improvisation techniques are used for aggressive contest ending in some sort of acceptance.

Meanwhile Keijser, snug in a hammock slung from a giant metallic mobile, smugly shifts his position to make the pots and pans that hang from it clash together or chase the dancers. I thought it rather fun, but in increasing the dance element they have reduced or diluted the conflict of personalities that was part of the attraction. It is also clear that, because of the improvisational elements, the performance can very a lot in quality,

The first people to be congratu-lated for this stimulating con-cert given by the BBC Symphony Orchestra under Gunther Herbig are the programme builders. For, although each of the three pieces they chose was either cause or consequence of Germanic romanticism, each had a completely different set of premises to the others:

To begin, we heard Webern's Six Pieces for Orchestra, Op 6, played in the first version for the enormous orchestra necessary to satisfy the composer's concern for exactness of colouring. The centrepiece of this darkcycle is the functeal fourth movement, whose terrifying forcussive ending is redolent of Mahler, but still more frightening because of the immediacy of the language. But there is nostalgia and sorrow besides, and all of these emotions were captured in a reading that emphasized the sheer beauty of Webern's harmonic writing as well as his marvellous orchestration.

In contrast, Beethoven's Symphony is less "Eroica" concerned with the self (or any other specific person) than with mankind is general. Here Herbig took advantage of the forces to hand by occasionally doubling the woodwind and born sections. This allowed him to make climaxes like that at the end of the slow movement ring with tragic majesty, and, although he ignored the first movement's exposition repeat, the performance was neverthebroadcast the superlative concert given by Frans Braggen's Orchestra of the Eighteenth Century at the Edinburgh less on the loftiest scale. Featival:

There was some superlative solo playing too, most promi-nently from the first oboe, David Thomas, and from the in Herbig's fierce horns Scherzo.

Miss Armstrong's tautly conceived performance leaned towards understatement, thus avoiding falling into the trap of over-sentimentality. New jobs for old, but not enough

The county of Cleveland stands like a coastal wedge hammered between Durham and North Yorkshire, a triangular chunky splice in the cricket bat of the North-East. The county is a canldron of dustry, steelworks, chemicals, and heavy engineering, tra-ditional trades which owe their existence to the central spine of the River Tees and to road and rail communications which have improved as these longstanding industries have declined.

Well over half a million people live in the county and, according to last month's statistics, nearly 56,000 of them are unemployed. This translates to 20.8 per cect of the employable population. The county divides into four county divides into four boroughs, Hartlepool, Mid-dlesbrough, Stockton and Langbaurgh, the last almost completely rural. One suspects that outside town halls, nobody really knows where borough boundaries begin and end. The mixture of industry is common to all three remaining boroughs though all three maintain industrial development organizations and vie with one another for new industry.

Hartlepool and Middlesbrough have the edge over Stockton because they have designated "enterprise zones" with all that means in terms of free rents, high-speed planning approval and a minimum of red tape to speed the implantation of new industrial and commercial projects.

The outsider must take a broad industrial view to discover how the county is faring. He could do worse than turn to the Cleveland County Council emconsidered by the elected representatives this week. He will discover that even after big cuts in employment in recent years, the steel and chemical industries still account for half the manufacturing jobs in Cleveland and about one fifth of all employment. It follows that many other companies depend on these two industries, which they provide with goods and On the steel side, decline in demand and foreign competition have been the canse of drastic cuts in jobs. In 1979 some 24,000 people were employed in steel compared with today's figure of 7,500. Production is now centred in the Redcar, Lackenby and Cleveland com-plexes with smaller works at Skinningrove, Cargo Fleet, Stockton and Middlesbrough.

The good news does not stop there. In the first six months of berth. 1983 the two ports, Tees and Hardepool, made a surplus of more than £4m and handled 17.5m tonnes. Moreover, Tees Dock which has made a loss for many years is now in the black. having registered a small cumplative profit of £150,00 for the first six months. Lifting the doom STEEL

Like the tides that hammer the North east coast, the fortunes of the steel industry - which basically means the British Steel Corporation in this part of the wurld - ebb and flow. If the peaks and troughs could be forecast they could plan for it. In Cleveland however, British Steel is celebrating new work for two mills thought totally doomed; and at the same time forecasting a bleak winter.

Three years ago, British Steel employed some 18,000 people on Teesside. It now employs 7,500 and still has the same capacity of about 70,000 tonnes a week. Capacity and pro-duction present a large gap and at the end of last year only 40,000 mnnes of liquid steel 40,000 mnnes of liquid steel was being produced per week. Earlier this year things picked up and by Jnne, BSC in Cleveland was averaging 65,000 tinnes a week. It was not to last long and a BSC spokesman said: "We look like being down to about 52,000 tonnes a week and are facing a bleak winter. Lack of demand in the bome market, some products limited by gnota some products limited by quota restrictions, keen price compe-tition in the export market and a continuation of restrictions in the United States, all contribute to our problems."

The overall picture is more encouraging, with the odd bright spot, such as Hartlepool. In April 1981 1CI merged petro-chemicals and plastics to form a new division. Since then a number of important steps Not long ago the BSC's 44 have been taken to reshape the company's UK bulk polymer inches pipe mill ran out of orders. The mill closed down, but for a small maintenance business to help recover profitability. The most significant was the acquisition by 1CI of BP Chemicals' PVC business and crew, and the men took redundancy payments on the understanding that they would return to work if new contracts were obtained. Nobody had hopes until the Shell Fulmar Field contract was obtained and the pipe mill reopened. The Hartlepool plate mill that produced plate for the pipe mill found itself in the same situation and so both mills which had been closed for about six months opened up in early August and are now producing plates and pipes.

Little, surely, could please Mr Norman Tebbit more in his new job as Secretary of its withholding tax on Hongkong dollar deposits. A simili levy on foreign currency deposits was withdrawn earlier to protet the colony's status as an aternational financial centre giving local people a tax incentive to hold their bank deposits in foreign currency.

Sir John admitted that there may be some upward pressu nn interest rates in the shor term but thought that "once the stability of the exchange rate becomes evident and accepted interest rates should fall below present levels."

State for Trade and Industry than the hints from government sources increases in the current account surplus and ease > trade tensions. Such moves would be neatly timed to provide a more positive background to the high-level visit of Japanese officials and businessmen to Britain and th continent next month, and to defuse what might otherwise be some ritually tough talking by the rapidly-briefed Mr Tebbit.

The package will be worked out on Friday, at an economic affairs council headed by Mr Yasuhiro Nakasone, the Prime Minister, and Mr Harno Maekawa, governor of the Bank of Japan.

From our point of view, the Japanese trade surplus is the big target. The private Nomura Research Institute calculates that the current account surplus could be about $28 billion this year, rising to $46 billion by 1986. But Japan is equally worried by unemployment. This is now at a peak, though, in inter-national terms, is minuscule at 2.8 per cent. The measures will surely include some stimulus to bome consumption. But this will not be enough. Mr Nakasone faces, in any case, business worries over his budget deficit and Mr Maekawa sees the rising yen as the main solution to trade strains. He will not, therefore, want to cut already low interest rates

Instead, Japan is likely to boost the yen by swallowing its prejudices and opening its financial markets further, reluctantly permitting the yen to play a greater role as a world trading and reserve currency.

Mr Tebbit will be more interested in the moves to cut tariffs and to encourage imports by getting more British goods into Japanese shops

He may reflect, though he will no doubt push the thought to the back of his mind, that what the Japanese are now doing under international pressure contrasts oddly with our own behaviour when we have had proportionately similar trade surpluses and rather more unemployed.

The stamp of success

The Stock Exchange has anderstandably taken the opportunity to link its commission-cutting reforms with pleas for the abolition of the 2 per cent stamp duty

If costs of dealing need to be cut for the exchange to compete internationally, runs the argument, why keep London expensive by keeping the stamp duty?

this, even though a concession allows overseas holders to pay only 1 per cent stamp. But the tax will not stop the London Stock Exchange becoming much more competitive than it is today and stamp duties are far too good at raising revenue cheaply, to throw property and securities, are expected to raise almost £1 billion this year. That is nearly as much as capital gains tax and capital transfer tax combined, with much less expense and much less distortion of people's behaviour,

There is a case for spreading the load even further, for instance, by charging a lower rate on shares but including all dealings in Government securities that are now exempt

Indeed, there is even a case for extending stamp duties into new growth areas such as credit card

'That's the difference'

It's a fact that Standard Chartered Bank has 1900 branches in over 60 countries.

And it's common experience that doing international business through Standard Chartered can be a lot more efficient - and profitable – as a result

Because we're dealing with our own branches, we can often solve in hours a problem that would take a correspondent network days to unravel. Because our branches are linked by the latest computer technology, working through our own private telecommunications network, we can speed the transmission of funds and the processing of documents dramatically. (It used to be an important advantage. Today, it's a crucial one.)

And because we can offer you a complete range of services worldwide (from 24-hour-aday foreign exchange dealing in 55 currencies through 18 dealing locations, to trade and project finance and merchant banking services) you'll almost certainly discover that we can make your international business life a lot simpler - as well as more efficient.

- We have, in short, something different to offer you. And discovering the difference could be the best business decision you'll make this year.

With Zoeller, on in when thay halved the first of the three, cutting close for a safe par 12 singles on the Champion the Spaniard fluffed his chip Course at the PGA National five feet short. The European Golf Club here yesterday. Europe and the United States entered the final day locked together at 8-8 and the biennial match remained on a knife edge as Ballesteros and Zoeller enjoyed a game of two halves. Initially the Spaniard held control after a miraculous run of four birdies in succession from the fourth took him from one down to three holes ahead.

Ballesteros holed from five yards at the fourth and fifth and of the green in two, he chipped over a huge bunker to eight yards and successfully holed for an unlikely birdie four. Another five yard putt for a two at the short seventh gave him a sound advantage which he held through to the twelfth, where Zoeller won his first hole since the second with a birdie.

Ballesteros lost the 13th and 14th through his own errors, three-putting the latter, and Zoeller astonishingly went ahead when he holed from 15 feet for a two at the short 15th. Ballesteros replied by winning the next with a 20-foot birdie putt and the two golfers came to the 18th all square. Both drove into the rough but Ballesteros, with a terrible lie, could force the ball only 20 yards forward into a bunker. He now had 245 yards to the green but he produced an incredible three

By Stuart Jones, Football Correspondent West Ham

Liverpool. During the gentle breezes of autumn

West Ham United carefully nurtured their championship ambitions, particularly in their own field at Upton Park, but they could not protect themselves from Saturday's gale. The winds, one sweeping in from the west and the other from the north, blew their short term challenge so far into the distance that their long term hopes look no heavier than chaff.

The western wind was so powerful that Parkes, who usually launches kicks deep into enemy territory, found the halfway line well beyond his reach. Slanting rain rendered the conditions so awkward that Grobbelaar would have failed an audition as a juggler and even Brooking and Dalglish, two artists of the highest calibre, were embarrassed by air shots. Dalglish, additionally, fell flat on his face and later added verbal decoration to the visual joke. "I wanted to have a good look at the pitch. Didn't you know there's supposed to be oil out there. I thought I'd do some prospecting." West Ham did not find the problem of conquering the lements so amusing.

Not could they, the young pretenders, cope with the northern tempest that arrived in the shape of Liverpool, crowned as champions last season. John Lyall, West Ham's manager, admitted: "They gave us a lesson in skill and movement. My players are all saying they found that their man on the ball had at least not one but two options."

That was apparent even when Liverpool's numbers were reduced to ten, Johnson having been harshly sent off for fouling Pike after half an hour and Bonds on the hour. Yellow, rather than maroon, remained the dominant colour until the final moments when Grobbelaar managed to divert Devonshire's low shot that was going wide into his own sodden net.

Robinson claimed all three Liverpool soals, his first in the Legue for his new club, and therin hes a tale. A fortnight ago Joe Fagan, his manager, advised him to take out the metal supports that he was accustomed to wearing in his boots. He promptly scored twice against Odense in the European Cup and once against Brentford in the Milk Cup before leaving Upton Park with the match ball.

Fagan, encouraged once again to reveal Liverpool's secret, said simply: "I think we can pass to each other. Well, you may laugh but it does make things casier Indeed. He also revealed that after the interval, when it was their turn to face the wind, they tamed it merely by keeping the ball on the ground, an exercise they will repeat next Samrday on Queens Park Rangers' synthetic turf.

Lyall added: "They are masters at blocking off avenues and taking you into tight, little streets where yon don't want to go." The tours conducted by his defenders, and particularly by Bonds, were not so closely guarded, and Robinson found himself free to take advantage in the 15th, 27th and 75th minutes.

Had Bonds been celebrating his seventieth rather than his seven hundredth appearance, he might not have been exposed by Grobbelaar's huge kick which led directly to the first goal and Johnston's cross which led eventually to the second. He might also have ended

As Robinson ("the best player on the pitch" according to Fastal blossomed, Rush withered. He was taken off early in the second half with a groin strain, an injury that kept him out for some weeks at the end of last season, and he is more than depitted for the Serr law of the Formation doubtful for the first leg of the European Cup second round tie against Athletic Bilbao at Anfield on Wednesday.

Apart from Watford, England's other representative on the continent prepared for their midweek games with victories. Manchester United, remarkably one of only two first division sides to win at home on Saturday, gaind further confidence by taking over at the top. Graham, Coppell's successor, gave them the lead and helped Whiteside add the second. Albiston was credited with the third.

Southampton's ambitious young steeplejacks were expected to climb above United but their hopes went in the other direction and sunk after 22 minutes. So much rain fell in Leicester that Filbert Street became a huge shallow bath and, after several players had gone for an involuntary swim and a splash, the referee abandoned the contest.

Leicester City, promoted from the second division last season, thus avoided defeat for only the second time, a dismal record that is shared by another of their fellow newcomers, Wolverhampton fellow newcorners, Wolverhampton Wanderers, in spite of the efforts of Gray. Hodge gave a more than passable imitation of Robertson and, from the moment he beat the full back to shoot across goal for Wallace to spply the finishing touch in the eighth mioute, he tormented Benjamin to distraction. Fashanu bore his treatment un-complainingly, until finally his patience snapped and he retaliated

There were storms on and off the ficid as Queensland began their three match tour of Britain with an 8-6 defeat against Hull Kingston Rovers at Craven Park yesterday. Ferocious winds rattled the chimneyposts of Humberside and farocious first half tackies rattled the teeth of the Rovers players, who learned agains and learned well on this occasion, the hard facts of rugby life against the Anstralians. every four home matches to be reasonably sure of staying in the top flight. Fulham have duly rounded past Featherstone Rovers and Whitehaven and hing on grimly to beat Hull by the end of September. Yesterday, however, the "fourth" side arrived at Craven Cottage and Fulham found themselves 32-0 down within an hour. Leeds' performance was what one learned again and learned well on this occasion, the hard facts of rugby life against the Anstralians. Three Rovers players Watkinson, Hartley and Hodstock were injured and substituted before half-time. Queensland conceded many penal-ies and Niebling spent 10 minutes in the sin bin. At half-time Queensland led 6-4, Lewis kicking a penalty goal and picking up a fortunate rebound to run through for a try. Fairthaim kicked two penalty goals for Rovers. Shortly after the interval a Queensland defender fumbled the ball on his own line and Smith touched down. This changed the course of the game dramatically. The Rovers' tackling became as fience and bone jarring as that of the Marooms, and Burton was sent to the sin bin, shortly after was to be followed by the Australian hooker Bernardin. Leds' performance was what one would expect of a first division side. THE TIMES MONDAY OCTOBER 17 1983

HORIZONS

The Times Guide to career choice Putting you in the picture

The number of excellect British Opportunities exist in films in recent years - Charlots of Fire, Ghandi, Local Hero, Another British films Time Another Place - might suggest but expect a struggle, that, at long last, our film industry was becoming a fit place in which to make a career. Unfortunately that writes Edward Fennell finance so that films can be made for both television and for distribution. The Draughtsman's Contract and Another Time Another Place were both financed by Channel 4.

There are also an increasing oumber of independent film pro-ducers, many of whose resources consist of a telephone, an office, and a secretary. These are the people who put together the "one-off" productioos for TV, art cinemas and film societies. Trade union regulations have been some-what modified so that, in certain circumstances, non-minon pro-ducers from the official Video and Film Workshops can oow have their work broadcast. For some of them it may prove an important step towards a professional career.

In the long term, video must have a major impact oo film production. As cable TV and video libraries become established they will become gluttons for more material, and opportunities in this field should increase.

The trend to be running in favour of small-scale operations with e minium of overheads. Some people, oo doubt, will continue to get jobs through the film-making

More women managers

More women graduates are becoming managers, according to a recent survey carried out for the Manpower Services Commission.

The survey, carried out by Mariln Davidson and Cary Cooper of the University of Manchester Institute of Science and Tech-nology, found that over a 10 year period, the oumber of women in finance eod accountancy rose from 14 per cent to 23 per cent, and those in legal work rose from 25 per cent to 32 per ceot, Personnel management showed a substantial increase from 51 per cent to 62 per cent, while marketing rose from 28 per cent to 36 per cent. Davidsoo and Cooper were quick to point out, however, that the increases were in jobs which traditionally employ females, such as in retailing, catering and personnel. Coosequently, they did and television establishmeot but others will go directly from college or workshop into a small company - or indeed raise money for their own company. Industrial, graphic and fashion designers have been doing this for years.

Freelancing is already a way of life for many people in the British film industry. Crews of film cameramen, sound assistants and continuity people come together almost daily oo freelance assign-ments for TV ads or promotional films. The technicians in Britain are reckoned to be among the best in the world.

Maybe that is why, according to Maybe that is why, according to Linda Loakes of the Associatioo of Cinematograph, Televisioo and Allied Technicians, they are so busy. "There are lots of oppor-tunities and oo shortage of work at the moment", she says. And although she is reluctant to talk about a trend she admits that she is "optimistier" and sees "a lot of work optimistic" and sees "a lot of work coming op in the future".

The final factor favouring British film is that the taste is growing for low-budget, modestly scaled films. You doo't always oced 100,000 extras and twelve international superstars to make a successful film. Maybe we are learning from the French that yoo only oeed half a dozen characters and the streets of a proviocial town to achieve powerful cinema. Plus, of course, a lot of talent. But that is already available in abundance.

oot regard the trends as an indication that traditional sex barriers at the opper levels of management are breaking down.

A oew book from careers publishers Kogan Page will be of interest to any job hunter considering flexible working hours. Part-time Work by Judith Humphries, provides a guide for people who find themselves unable or unwilling to work full-time, and looks at the choices available to them. The text covers rights and beoefits, career cootinnity, promotioo and oppor-tunities for training. It also cootains more than 30 case histories of parttime workers whose experiences are related in an attempt to discover the ways in which personal circumstances and job situations can bleod in a satisfactory working life.

Part-time Work is available from Kogan Page Ltd, 120 Pentonville Road, London NI, price £7.95 hardback, and £3.95 paperback.

'Our man must stay'say voters

By Alan Hamilton

Mr Cecil Parkinson has the sympathy and support of a majority of his constituents to judge from a random sample interviewed by The Times in Potters Bar and its environs vesterday.

Most people spoke highly of Mr Parkinson, urged him to remain as MP for Hertsmere, and apportioned blame for his embarrassment equally between the media and Miss Sara Keays.

"His private life had nothing to do with his public life. He should have stayed in the Cabinet; he has been a very good MP. to us," Mr Robert Allan, a builder, said. He added: "Mrs Thatcher and her Victorian values have got nothing to do with it; plenty worse was swept under the carpet by the Victorians

Mrs Adelle Cohen drew comparison with the Profumo scandal. "There was some justification for him going, because his affairs could have been a security risk. But Mr Parkinson's private affairs have not impinged on his public life in any serious way. He should certainly stay on."

Mr Anthony Hill, an engi-neer, said his departure was a great loss to the Government. "The press has made far too much of an issue of it, and the lady concerned has not helped his situation."

Mrs Amanda Taylor, a housewife, thought Mr Parkinson's only sin was to have broken his alleged promises to Miss Keays. "He should have left his wife and married the if that's what he woman, wanted. Apart from that, he has done no more than what millions of others do."

There are some constituents, however, who feel Mr Parkinson should have resigned his seat, including the Mayor of Hertsmere, Councillor Mrs Iris keep silent. who favours resig-Fielding, nation.

But Mr Christopher Watts, leader of the Conservative-controlled council, has voiced his support for Mr Parkinson and urged him to stay on the grounds that his haison was a purely personal affair.
